SENATOR WESELY: Well, 775, we qualified somewhere around 200, close to 200. There's another couple hundred in the works, and the total obligation is over $1 billion.

SENATOR ROBINSON: Okay. Why don't, on the A bill on Select File, Senator Bruning, say that anyone that's partook of that money must be a part of this bill? I mean, we give it out, let's get some of it back. Doesn't it make sense? Senator Bruning nodded it makes sense. Think about that, think about that. My gosh, Cargill ought to take about a hundred up there. You can quote me, I don't care. Look at all of them. There's where you ought to get your money. They can divvy up. Put the pressure on them. You know, they're the people that are saying, boy, we don't have enough people, we don't have enough people. Peter Kiewit says, we don't have enough people. Make them...say, come on; either that or you don't get the money. And I'm sure we'd get a lot of votes here. We'd probably get two or three, maybe, I don't know. But that's what we should do. It makes sense. Doesn't it make sense, Senator Lynch, to do that? Very logical, he says. Now a lot of people over there aren't very logical, because they're not listening. Now they ought to listen now. There are a lot of cattle people over there. Now maybe...now there's a point there, too, Senator Bruning, that all of those cattle people, now they're losing money like mad. We probably ought to give them some money back but, you know, we're making them spend a little more money now. We don't work that way down here, but you ought to think about that. Wouldn't that be great? That would finance your program right there, finance your program. And they could throw a little more in for scholarships, too. That's...of course, that's what the money is for. They could finance that themselves. Think about that, and all...and all the private schools, too. Of course, private schools gets...they get very little money from the state of Nebraska, which is a great mistake, because over in Iowa they get a lot of money from their General Fund, but we've sort of ignored those kind of schools. Right, Senator Lynch? Senator Lynch knows. Anyone that has anything to do with private schools know that we've never done a very good job of funding private schools. And those students live in Nebraska, most of those students live in Nebraska. They should get some of that money. So you ought to consider that.
